Las Vegas BYU Management Society Presents 2009 Executive Committee

[LAS VEGAS, Nev.] June 22, 2009 – A premier organization for the development of business leaders, values and the influence of moral and ethical leadership throughout the community, the local Las Vegas Chapter of the BYU Management Society announces the 2009 executive committee.

The committee consists of new Chapter President – Dawson White, President Elect – Shannon Hiller, Past President - Michael Call, Director of Programs - Nate Broadhead, Treasurer - Larry Moulton, Director of Publicity and Public Relations - Ken Craig, Director of Membership - Laura Turek, Chapter Webmaster - Rod Streets, Director of Networking - Bryce Earl, Director of Placement - Rick Trout, Executive Secretary - Deena King, Alumni Associations Liaison - Mark Cordner and Advisory Board Liaison - Phil Richards.

“The Management Society is a powerful conduit for networking, career development, and service to the community,” says Chapter President Dawson White. “As the executive committee, we recognize these themes have always been a standard; but are even timelier now than ever.”

About the Las Vegas Chapter

The BYU Management Society: Las Vegas Chapter is dedicated to improving the financial and civic opportunities of its members and friends. This is primarily done through our series of monthly luncheons featuring guest speakers chosen for their dynamic achievements, public service, or business-academics. The Society also sponsors community service programs and provides a valuable mentoring and employment resource to its members and friends. The chapter is comprised of business people from diverse educational, social, and religious backgrounds dedicated to a common goal of lifting one another and our community through high standards of ethical business conduct as well as the sharing of business experiences, skills, ideas and service.

About the BYU Management Society

The Management Society was founded in 1977 by Dean Merrill J. Bateman as an organization of alumni and friends of the BYU College of Business—now Marriott School of Management. Membership includes not only BYU and Marriott School alumni, but many other business professionals with the same desire for professional advancement, high ethical standards, career development, and continuing education. Twenty-Five years after its founding, the management society is an influential organization with about 6,000 members in 40 U.S. cities and 10 countries.
